

TINY CAMPUS ON TOUR

Call for Participation

Drawing as a Practice - Practicing Drawing

On location in Freiburg im Breisgau

April 30, 2022

10am – 6pm

The Workshop

This one-day workshop concentrates on drawing as a research practice, methodology, and tool for communicating research results. It blends the theoretical, experiential, and practical through short presentations, possibilities for group exchange in addition to collaborative learning, and a hands-on drawing workshop with a local illustrator. Our goal is to bring people together who are interested in drawing as a method in the social sciences to connect with each other, but also to draw connections between the university and public spaces – the spaces we usually draw (in) for our research.

Pop-up Conferencing

The idea of the Tiny Campus emerged in response to pandemic restrictions as a flexible format which seeks to build an immersive networking venue, despite the on-going constraints. Emerging scholars in various locations are organizing events about pushing the limits of 'traditional' methodologies in their fields, specifically when dealing with public spaces. You can read more about it at: tinycampusontour.eu/cfp

Participants

If you are an advanced Master's student, PhD candidate, or Post-Doc interested in drawing/sketching as a method in your research or in displaying your research findings, this workshop is for you! We invite those who are ready to share their own experiences, those who have tried and struggled, those who have learned unexpected lessons, and those curious about including drawing in their work to apply. The workshop is not discipline specific, in fact, we believe, that especially with an interdisciplinary group of participants, we can use what we learn across disciplines; in and outside of the university. You do not have to be an artist!

Application

To participate in the whole day (lunch included) please submit a max. 300-word note of interest and a max. 150-word biography to TinyCampusConference@gmail.com by April 5th, 2022. Please note that spots are limited.

Alternatively, if you would like to see the Tiny House, meet us in an informal atmosphere, and listen in on some of the talks, you are welcome to drop by the Tiny House at any time on April 30th. Check our website for the exact location and more detailed schedule information. We would be happy to meet you! Unfortunately, you cannot spontaneously join the illustration workshop or lunch.

For more information, please feel free to contact Michelle at: TinyCampusConference@gmail.com or visit our website: tinycampusontour.eu. Working knowledge of German and English is helpful; this event is part of a cross-border initiative to connect research networks between Freiburg and Strasbourg. French is also spoken on site and we will facilitate groups and discussions as an inclusive, multilingual experience.
